German Report Says Reds Cross Border Of Reich

East Prussia Being Invaded By Red Troops

Nazi News Agency Reports
Reich Is Invaded From East Today

REPORT BATTLING ON GERMAN SOIL

By CHARLES A. SMITH
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Troops of the Red army whose supreme commander, Marshal Joseph Stalin, vowed that the "Nazi beast" would be crushed in his own lair, invaded the Reich from the east today, the Nazi trans-ocean agency reported.

Soviet spearheads crossed frontier into East Prussia to carry the conflict to German home soil for the first time in the current war.

The German agency DNB said that fierce battles were being waged against the invading Soviet forces striking into the citadel of German junker generals.

No Moscow Confirmation

Transocean said that the penetration into East Prussia from Poland was made at Wirballen (Virballis), a frontier station a mile from the frontier.

The town of Wirballen itself lies in Lithuania but the railway and frontier station serving it and bearing its name actually is on German soil, according to the German broadcasts.

Another break-through was reported made at Schaken.

There was no immediate confirmation.

PA NEWC Observes

Someone must have had too many groceries to carry Friday afternoon. A large watermelon, broken into several pieces, was noticed lying on Washington street at that time.

Interest is being shown in an unusual souvenir on display in Jack Gerson's window. The ash tray, patterned after a P-38 model plane, was made by Sgt. Andy Hudak, stationed in New Guinea, for his father, John Hudak, 1603 Hanna street. The gift was made of spent shells and bullets.

Sunday will be sort of "old home day" for a number of former pastors of churches of the city, these former pastors being scheduled to occupy pulpits during absence of the regular pastors on vacation.

New Castle and Lawrence county are not alone in feeling the effects of an abnormal heat wave, according to reports this morning. The heat wave extends over a great part of the nation at the present time.

Pa. News noted how a couple of boys were beating the heat wave early this morning. Curled up in blankets they were sleeping soundly under the trees in the back yard at their North Hill home.

Hopes were entertained last night by local residents that a real shower was in the offing that might end the torrid heat spell. But a light sprinkle of rain was all that developed here.

Tent caterpillars or some other kind of affliction seems to be appearing rapidly on some trees around this vicinity. Some fruit trees appear to be affected with a sort of blight also.

If you are curious to know why those carnival wagons are still on a siding near South Mill and Division streets, we'll tell you. The carnival had enough wagons for their stuff and left the extra ones here until they reclaim them. That's all brother.

Primary Aim Of Latest Drive In France Achieved

By CAPTAIN JOHN H. CRAIG
(Written Especially For International News Service)
With Rennes firmly in American hands and armored spearheads thrusting beyond it toward the sea, Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's hard-hitting Second Army forces have assured the achievement of the primary objective of their present offensive—that of securing additional elbow-room for superior Allied fighting forces to deploy—as outlined in this column a week ago today.

When Allied lines are extended completely across Brittany's peninsula to the vicinity of St. Nazaire, the length of the American-British front will have been increased from approximately 100 miles, its length at the beginning of present operations, to something more than twice that mileage. In addition, Brittany's great ports of Brest, St. Nazaire, Lorient and St. Malo will become American-British bases for the landing of supplies.

Important Victory

This constitutes a great and important victory, but it is premature to assume that it implies anything resembling total defeat for Nazi armies of the west, or that an early collapse of German resistance in France is likely to follow. Sober military judgment repeatedly emphasized in dispatches from the Allied invasion-command, points out that it represents an important and necessary step, but only a step in the military program that lies ahead, always barring an internal German blow-up.

The immediate objective of Allied efforts since the establishment

Bulgars Ready To Quit War
At Terms Of Allies, Al-
giers Radio Says

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(INS)—Bulgaria is ready to make peace, the Algiers radio declared today, and is reported willing to accept armistice terms proposed by the Allies.

The terms were said to be: Withdrawal of all Bulgarian troops from Greece and Yugoslavia; release of all patriots now interned.

Withdrawal of Bulgarian troops to pre-1939 frontiers.

Demarcation of Bulgarian frontiers after the war, with due consideration for economic factors.

Recognition of the citizenship rights of Jews.

Expulsion of Germans from all executive positions in Bulgaria, including civil jobs.

Washington Roundup

A far-reaching industrial and human demobilization bill which was placed before the senate today was expected to provide the first battle ground of the presidential campaign.

The measure, sponsored by Sens. Kilgore (D) W. Va. and Murray (D) Mont., was reported by the Senate Military Affairs Committee over the vigorous opposition of Republican members. The bill provides for the creation of a powerful director of mobilization and adjustment, a national production-employment board and a broad program of retaining and unemployment benefits. Republicans charged that the measure would give the Federal government a life-and-death grip on the economic future of the people.

High WPB officials were understood to be displeased with the new manpower order of War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes on the grounds that it gives War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt, veto power over production of civilian goods.

WPB executives were said to have objected specifically to the provision which gave WMC veto control over the resumption of civilian output in the fairly balanced and surplus labor areas.

Sen. Homer Ferguson charged today that the nation's distillers were making excessive profits at the government's expense. The Michigan senator contended the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was "careless" in allegedly failing to renegotiate government contracts with distillers for production of wartime commercial alcohol.

The Senate Defense Investigating Committee, under its new chairman, Senator James Mead, of New York, backed down to work today and planned a series of hearings on the war food program, transportation and the pulp and paper shortage.

U-BOAT PENS ARE BIGGEST TARGET

By KINGSBURY SMITH
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Aug. 5.—Vast formations of RAF Lancaster bombers ravished the Nazi-held French Port of Brest by Daylight today in a drive to smother any enemy attempt to evacuate the area by sea in the face of the smashing American armored offensive through Brittany.

Already the Americans are fighting inside the port city of St. Malo while other columns have reached points within 75 miles of Brest and 38 miles of the harbors of St. Nazaire and Lorient.

Hammer U-Boat Pens

Official spokesmen at Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters announced the aerial assault on Brest and revealed that a great tonnage of bombs was loosed over the sprawling U-boat pens inside that Breton port. Their terse statements were the first intimation that the Germans might even be considering a sea-borne evacuation of the region.

Report Japanese In Full Retreat In Dutch New Guinea

By FRANK ROBERTSON
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Aug. 5.—The Japanese Second Army, comprised of several thousand troops, fled south and west through the Vogelkop peninsula of western Dutch New Guinea in "full retreat" today in a frantic effort to escape American assault forces.

The fear-stricken enemy abandoned all strongholds on Gellink Bay and the upper part of the Vogelkop peninsula, leaving to Yank amphibious forces three major airfields and a good harbor.

As the Japanese retreat began, American forces on Sansapor beachhead expanded their positions at the cost of minor losses, while attack planes bombed and strafed the Nabire airbase and barracks area, setting off many fires.

YANKS RACING FOR VITAL BRITTANY PORTS

The slashing, speedy advance of American troops in France is prompted in great part, according to a War department spokesman, by the necessity of relieving the strain on our supply services. Although our forces hold the Cherbourg peninsula and are now knifing their way across the Breton peninsula, lack of adequate ports has resulted in the continuance of supplying our troops in part through the original beachheads (1) secured in the early days of the campaign. This drawback may soon be overcome when Yank units speeding from Rennes (2) reach St. Nazaire and Brest. By cleaning out the Germans in Brittany, the ports of St. Malo (3), Brest (4), Lorient (5) and St. Nazaire (6) could all be employed to funnel supplies into France for the drive inland.

Most Of Nation In Grip Of Heat Wave

(International News Service)
Most of the United States sweltered today in one of the most widespread and protracted heat waves on record with temperatures recorded yesterday that ranged as high as 117.

New York City chalked up its hottest day of the year and its warmest Aug. 4 on record when the mercury hit 96.3 at 4:15 p. m. continued for today with possibly new record heats in sight. Scattered thundershowers promised but scant relief later in the day.

A drought in West Virginia was said by agriculture officials to be in a critical stage and Findlay, Ohio, experienced its 41st day without rain.

Intense Heat In New England

At least one death was caused by the intense heat in New England, as no hope for relief was given by the weather bureau in that sector.

The Pittsburgh district sweltered under 94-degree heat yesterday and the weatherman predicted it would get "warmer" today.

The seriousness of the drought in Illinois was emphasized by Ray A. Dillinger, of the Illinois department

Allied Prisoners Are Abandoned In Nazi Retreat

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(INS)—The British radio reported today that German troops retreating today through the Vogelkop peninsula of western Dutch New Guinea, left their prisoners behind them.

At one hospital alone, 600 wounded Anglo-American troops were found, the announcer said.

He was attacked with cramps, or become exhausted. His body was found by Robert Huddle, of West Grant street, and recovered from the deep hole by Louis Walker of West North street. Efforts of Fireman William Bowen with an inhalator, at resuscitation failed, because the boy had been under water almost an hour.

According to Coroner T. F. Nugent, John and his seven year old brother Robert, went to the west bank of the Shenango. The former went in swimming, swam across the stream but in the middle on the return trip, went down. His brother ran home, gave the alarm and police and fire rescue squads were notified. ### Speed Of Advance Throws Germans Into Confusion

By RICHARD TREGASKIS
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

ON THE FRENCH FRONT BEYOND MORTAIN, Aug. 4.—(Delayed)—Swift-moving American armored and infantry columns descended with a crash on the Germans in this area today in such a dazzling display of speed that the Nazis were completely disorganized—as disorganized as our Allies in this same country were in 1940.

This correspondent is with a tank and infantry spearhead which drove through Mortain and beyond, pinching four German divisions between here and the British spearhead in the Vire area.

Here the escape corridor is seven miles wide. Many of the German forces realizing their plight have fled headlong to the south and east in a movement which the natives here describe as a "true rout." The Nazis have really been hit by a blitzkrieg—American style. And they are not at all happy about it.

Germans In Confusion

The rest of the Germans, thrown into confusion, are fighting in small pockets in many cases well behind our lines. Some individuals are trying to make a break for it but not knowing our dispositions they are being—unfortunately for them—to come through our lines.

One Philadelphia Subway-Elevated Partially Operates

Bus And Trolley Strikes In Open Defiance Of Orders Of President

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—(INS)—One subway-elevated line of the strike-bound Philadelphia Transportation company went into partial service today as the disastrous wildcat work stoppage of 6000 transit employees moved into its fifth day.

The Quaker City's streets, however, were deserted of buses and trolleys as the strikers in open defiance of President Roosevelt's order placing the Army in control of the system, voted to continue the strike which has all but paralyzed transportation and impeded the war effort.

Operations were completely disrupted last night, when the few trolleys and subway elevated trains which serviced the city during the day returned to their depots.

Meanwhile, there was no change in the attitude of the strikers, who walked out Tuesday in protest against the company's hiring and upgrading of eight Negroes to promote conductors and motor-men in compliance with a government directive.

Some of the idle workers reportedly openly threatened a handful of workers who managed to provide yesterday's "very limited" service.

James H. McManis, chairman of the strikers' general committee reiterated "the unanimous decision of the general strike committee to stay in the status quo" despite his three-hour conference with military officials.

of agriculture, who issued the following statement at Detroit: "Conditions are pathetic. Only a drenching rain of several days can help—and only a little."

"The corn crop will be cut in half. The yield of beans will be only about a third of normal. Vegetables now in the ground will perish if the drought continues."

Dillinger said similar conditions prevail throughout the Midwest.

Record In Chicago

Thundershowers and cooler weather were forecast for Chicago today after four days of record heat. A peak of 92 degrees was reached in Chicago yesterday.

Rain which fell throughout the area yesterday merely settled the dust.

In Denver, noted for its temperate summer climate, the temperature soared above 90 degrees today since July 28 to reach a high of 96.4 Thursday, however, the heat wave appeared broken today with a high of 90 predicted.

Philadelphia, which sweltered through record high temperatures for July, saw the relief during the first few days of August.

The weather bureau, which recorded 97 degrees yesterday to tie the season's record, predicted that the mercury would hover between 86 and 98 degrees today. But to the many Philadelphians who were forced to walk to and from work because of the transit strike, it seemed even hotter.

Showers, expected in a day or so, raised the hopes of eastern Pennsylvania farmers, whose crops suffered from only 1.05 inch of rainfall in July. The normal July amount is 4.15 inches.

Washington continued to swelter in hot and humid weather today with a prediction of 90 degrees during the early afternoon. The temperature during the morning was 90 degrees with 84 per cent humidity. However, some hope was held out for a cooler week-end by the capital district. The weather bureau said thundershowers could be expected late this afternoon and during the night, also probably tomorrow. While it was hot all week in Washington, it was about average for this section.

of the original beachhead and the capture of the important harbor of Cherbourg, has been to get more room, so that the great American-British superiority in men and equipment could be brought to bear on the Nazis.

More Ports Necessary

More ports were also vitally necessary as Cherbourg proved too small to supply the growing Allied hosts of fighting men. In his present whirlwind campaign General Bradley has insured the fulfillment of these twin needs. Twice as many Allied divisions will now be able to be brought to bear on faltering German resistance. The greatly extended front line will render possible a more diversified Allied strategy. Frontal attacks will be less necessary. A greater variety of blows can be arranged to bewilder defensive forces.

In addition, the great harbors which have been cut off by Gen. Bradley's whirlwind drive and must now fall into American hands, will render it possible to pour practically unlimited quantities of men and supplies into France to build up Allied strength on the fighting lines.

Second Stage Completed

With Brest, St. Malo, Lorient and other nearby smaller harbors in Allied hands, the second stage of the great Allied invasion of Europe may now be considered completed. First stage was actually getting ashore and establishing a beachhead. Second stage was expanding the beachhead—getting sufficient elbow room; and enough big ports to supply an army. With the ports of Brittany added to the Norman harbors already in Allied hands, it should now be possible to raise the strength of our armies in Normandy and Brittany to any desired level. When this has been done the real battle of France will begin.

unique said the Japanese troops apparently hoped to evacuate from western New Guinea after the "sinks seized a 10-mile strip on the Vogelkop peninsula, but pointed out that the natural difficulties of the movement were great.

"With the added hazards of our ground, naval and air activities, Japanese losses at best cannot fail to be calamitous," the communique added.

Even if the Japanese from Manokwari—where the Second Army was garrisoned—could use the most direct route, they would have to cover some 100 miles to reach Macassar Gulf from which they presumably hope to be evacuated by ship to other Jap-held islands in the Netherlands East Indies.

The Japanese army, commanded by Gen. Fusatara Teshima, was charged with the defense of Dutch New Guinea, but its "practical effectiveness" now is rapidly ending.

Resuscitation Efforts Fail

After the body was recovered the fire department rescue squad and other volunteers including rescuers from the Pennsylvania Power company, made resuscitative efforts with the Inhalator but to no avail. After they had worked over the body for about 45 minutes Dr. David Perry pronounced the boy dead. The boy had been under water for at least 45 minutes, it was believed.

John was born in New Castle on February 14, 1935, son of John and Ethel Black Grommes. He was a pupil at the West Side school. He attended the First Methodist church.

In addition to his father, John Grommes, of Kennwood, Pa., he leaves his mother, Mrs. Ethel Black Grommes, this city; a brother, Robert; a sister, Delores Ann, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Grommes, and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Black, this city.

Pfc. M. Kline Is Killed In France

Word Is Received Martin Street Soldier Killed In Action July 19

Mrs. Katherine Kline, 434 Martin street, received a telegram Friday from the War Department informing her of the death of her son, Pfc. Michael Kline, Pfc. Kline was killed in action in France, on July 19.

Pfc. Kline, who was attached to the Infantry Corps, had been overseas since December, 1942, and overseas since December, 1943.

The soldier, who was 22 years of age, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Kline.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by one brother, Pfc. Stephen Kline, now stationed in India; three sisters, Mrs. Jennie St. Clair, Katherine and Matilda Kline; and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Schuller, all of this city.

Pfc. Kline was a graduate of East Brook high school in the class of 1940. He was employed at the Shenango Pottery before his induction into the army.

STEEP OF ADVANCE THROWS GERMANS INTO CONFUSION

ground. I can look down on the German escape route—at least, they think it is an escape route.

It is the usual Normandy dirt road, dominated by a powerful force of American tanks and self-propelled guns.

Now the road is lonely and deserted, but occasionally sad remnants of crack Nazi divisions can be seen trying to make their getaway. To see their efforts would be pitiful if it were not such just repayment.

This morning a platoon of enemy soldiers trooped along the road before trying to find their way to a safe sanctuary. They thought they were in safe territory for their helmets were white, and they were barely able to walk along.

Suddenly they were blasted by our shellfire and their trucks were destroyed. A few minutes later a German motorcyclist rolled along the road and was killed.

A truck bearing officers and equipment dived into Mortain and was ripped up by American Tommy guns and heavy machine-gun fire.

Last night, in a town to our north four German trucks pulled up in front of a house, apparently thinking they were German. The German vehicles were destroyed and about 25 Germans killed or captured.

This confusion is typical. As one American officer put it, "The enemy is getting some of his own medicine."

One German prisoner, a headquarters clerk in a Nazi supply corps, said:

"You Americans move too fast. There's no safe job in the German army any more."

The speed of this type of warfare makes it full of surprises, with our flying columns traveling so fast one is frequently moving in close quarters with the enemy.

I visited one command post where three generals were conferring. Less than two miles away an enemy pocket of about 200 Panzer troops was being chased down. A half hour later, the entire American headquarters was on the move again.

occurred when a high-up German general went to Hitler's headquarters and demanded that the war be ended so that something might be rescued from the wreckage of the German war machine.

Fired At Hitler

The general allegedly drew a revolver, aimed it hastily and succeeded in firing a bullet through the right hand before "S" guards intervened. The general, it was said, then turned the weapon to his own head and shot himself.

Circumstantial evidence supports the Algiers report, the diplomatic writer to the Express said. It was broadened, announcement of the bomb attempt he returned to three incidents aimed at his assassination.

Apart from the Munich beer cellar incident in 1940 in which a bomb exploded shortly after Hitler left, and the bomb attempt of July 20, there was no public record of any other attempted assassination.

area of Normandy, was termed "very satisfactory."

While the Americans pressed multi-pronged assaults west and south through Brittany, other Yank forces slashed eastward beyond Fougères in a drive that might possibly be developed into a push toward Paris.

Spearheads in Brittany heading toward the Maunon area in the direction of Lorient were expected to continue forward swiftly, the headquarters spokesman said, since the territory is in a zone highly developed by the French forces of the interior.

The British in Normandy lunged forward southwest of Caen to smash the Germans from at least three strategic towns. They recaptured Esquay and Evreux and occupied Ondefontaine.

The Germans dropped back all along the front between Villers-Bocage and Caen, but headquarters said that the enemy was withdrawing in orderly fashion and the retreat could not be called disorganized.

The enemy withdrawal was being carried out behind well laid minefields and the Germans covered the retreat by strong, almost incessant counter-attacks to stem Allied spearheads.

The Germans still developed no organized resistance in Normandy and the headquarters spokesman said there was no evidence that there was any organized line below the Avranches-Mortain line.

Simply stand and fight wherever the opportunity offers and then resume their retreat.

Previous front reports concerning the German stampede told how the Nazis often turned and fought when they were unable to outdistance the Yanks burling forward.

Armored Spearheads Fan Out

The armored spearheads in Brittany fanned out to reach points in the neighborhoods of Loudeac, Maunon, Derval and Chateaubriant, an official communique from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters said.

The column pressing forward in the vicinity of Loudeac struck to within 75 miles of Brest, second port of France.

Columns heading through Derval and Chateaubriant struck southward in the direction of St. Nazaire and Nantes.

Other spearheads in the north of Brittany swept westward through Dol, now cleared of the enemy, to reach the approaches of St. Malo. The Americans last were reported some seven miles from St. Malo.

Another armored prong was pressed eastward from below Pontorson to beyond Fougères as the Yanks sought to find the German left flank. Other forces were reported advancing southeast of Landivy.

North of Fougères, fighting continued for Mortain and advanced troops reached the area of Barenton in a drive sweeping around to the rear of Nazi forces opposing the Allies in Normandy.

A large part of the forest of St. Sever above Mortain came into Allied hands.

Germans Counter-Attack

The Germans loosed determined counter-attacks east and northeast of Vire, where the Americans and British are co-ordinating assaults, but the enemy efforts were frustrated, headquarters said.

After the Nazis southwest of Caen were cleared from Esquay and Avreux, leading Allied troops were reported to have advanced to the area of Vacognes and Amaye-Sur-Orne.

There was every indication that appreciable further gains had been made by the Yanks since last reports were received from the front which would considerably lessen the gaps separating Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's forces from their goals.

The breakthrough speed of the Yank armored and motorized forces still had come up against no organized resistance and it appeared that the whole of the peninsula would be overrun within a short time by the five main prongs slicing through Brittany.

If long winter curtains look worn use the upper halves to make summer sash curtains.

EAST PRUSSIA BEING INVADIED BY RED TROOPS

mation from Moscow of the crossing into Reich territory, the greatest triumph of the war to date for Soviet armies which had been driven all the way back to Stalingrad and deep into the Caucasus after Hitler turned his armies loose against the Russians on June 22, 1941.

If the Nazi report is true early confirmation may be expected in a special order of the day from Stalin, who always waits until a victory has been secured before announcing new Soviet gains.

The strike into East Prussia apparently was made by Red army units which crashed westward from Mariampol, some 23 miles east of Wirballen.

On Koenigsberg Route

The main assault came from just north of Wirballen, according to the Nazis. The station of Wirballen some two or three miles from the town itself, is on the main line running through Kaunas, Insterburg and Koenigsberg.

A break-through at this point places the Russians on the main route into Koenigsberg which looms as the first major prize of the Red army on German soil.

The reported entry into East Prussia climaxes fears of the residents of East Prussia that the Soviets, after crashing down the last major German defense bastions in northern Poland would not be long in sweeping into their homeland.

Reports of extreme unrest resulting from anxiety over the Russian onslaught were current in past weeks and dispatches from the continent told of roads being choked by persons evacuating threatened areas.

By NATALIA RENE (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

Moscow, Aug. 5.—The massive Soviet war machine thundered forward today to stab to within less than 40 miles of the former Polish capital of Krakow, increased the threat to East Prussia and shoved an armored spearhead to within 75 miles of German Silesia.

In the drive on Krakow, major defense bastion guarding German Silesia, the Red army seized Nowy Korczyn and Goryslawice, less than 40 miles from the Nazi-held city.

Russian forces smashing along behind the Nazis blasted Virballen river defenses swept up more than 100 localities, including the towns of Stopenia and Pacanow. Nowy Korczyn is 24 miles southwest of the town of Staszow, which the Red army captured Thursday and which is only 110 miles south of Warsaw.

Drive On Krakow

In the lightning frontal drive towards Krakow, Soviet hordes took the railway station of Sedziszow and won the main Lwow-Tarnow-Krakow line, 34 miles from Tarnow.

On the 80-mile front facing the East Prussian frontier, Gen. Ivan D. Chernyakhovskiy's army group fought its way into more than 300 places west of Kaunas and south-west of Mariampol.

Among the 300 localities in the Suwalki triangle—the strip of Polish territory that was incorporated into East Prussia by the Germans after the Polish campaign in September 1939. Krasnopol is 16 miles east of Suwalki and 24 miles from the German border.

The Soviet high command communique neglected to mention the fighting around besieged Warsaw but the commander in chief of the Polish underground army, Gen. Bor in a radio report on the situation in the Polish capital, said the general post office, the Warsaw skyscraper, and another building in Napoleon Square are "in our hands since August 2 at 4:22 p. m."

The Fleet prison, London, England, got its name from its situation on the bank of the Fleet, a tidal stream tributary to the Thames.

Bombs Of 1,000 Tons?

When a mouthpiece on the German radio asserted recently that Allied leaders had agreed that the war in Europe must be forced to an end by October at the latest—before the Nazis have an opportunity to put new weapons into use—a press dispatch from London said the broadcast apparently was trumpeted to the German people to rally them behind the Reich's effort to gain time and a military stalemate.

It is, of course, obvious that the Allies now have the upper hand and need not take any desperate measures because of Nazi threats of new weapons. Yet, German broadcasts of new weapons to come sound quite formidable in the light of the possibilities of development of the robot bomb.

A writer in the New York Herald-Tribune presents an interesting but rather frightening picture of weapons of the future and terms the robot bomb the culmination of a tremendous development in the direction of self-propelled missiles. The rocket airplane is a corollary step, he says, and the self-propelled rocket cannon is another, but "above them all rides the eerie potentiality of the 10-ton (or the 100-ton, or the 1,000-ton) stratosphere rocket shell, capable of being fired 100 or 200 miles, or from Berlin to Chicago in some dark day ahead."

"The flying bomb is a vision of the future; not a pretty vision, but one that must be anticipated if the decent human beings left on earth are to survive."

It is conceivable that a new power will arise from this conflict, more formidable and ruthless than any world menace of the past or present. It has frequently happened after former wars.

The potential robot is to the airplane, even at this stage, the writer says, what the automobile is to the horse or the bicycle. The robot, he says, is cheap to build, has incredible possibilities of speed in stratosphere flight and untouched tactical and strategical avenues of new warfare. So far England has seen only the baby robot and few Britons would care to see an older brother.

The writer asks whether the potential robot or automaton shall be the weapon of the Germans and the Japanese in 1960, or whether "we shall seize this great new science and devote its use to civilized purposes. It seems that the answer is up to us, and the answer should not be long delayed."

Four Stars For Fighting Joe

Elevation to four starred rank of Lieutenant General Joe Stilwell, our East Asia top commander and Chiang Kai-shek's right-hand man, is a step that will receive full American approval and, without doubt, that of the Chinese.

Fiction could not produce a more colorful character than this "Fighting Joe" of World War II who tramped the grueling jungle trails out of Burma after what he frankly called a "hell of a beating" and has come back slugging with well-trained Chinese as well as American forces under his command and is giving the Japs an even more expressive beating.

It is intimated that General Stilwell's promotion is not only in recognition of great services, but a preparation for operations on a far larger scale against the Japanese than heretofore, in which his exceptional abilities as organizer and leader would be in order. We hope that is the case and that he will get all the guns, planes and men he needs to drive the Japs not only from Burma, but China.

Railroads And The War

In America railroads are taken for granted, so much so that whenever there is much of a deviation from schedule people indulge in their inalienable right to gripe: "The service is lousy!"

But when the complete history of this war is written, the railroads of the United States will deserve a special chapter.

Recognition of their part in winning the war has come from one who should know—Maj. Gen. Charles P. Gross, chief of transportation of the Army Service Forces. He told an audience at a dinner of the American Museum of Safety that the railroads have "responded magnificently to the staggering demand of a global war."

Civilians, even when their duties require much rail travel, rarely realize the complication or the magnitude of the transportation job that is being done. They see long trains of freight cars passing by. They see rail yards full of cars being pushed hither and yon. They know something of passenger train congestion.

But the over-all problem of handling war goods, getting the shipments to points of embarkation at just the right moment for reloading on ships, and then snaking out the cars to prevent a pile-up at sidings—these are things of which only those closely connected with the railroad business have a true conception.

All this has been done in spite of a critical manpower shortage. It has been done with a minimum of public inconvenience. Travelers may experience some delay and some discomfort, but except on rare occasions they get where they want to go.

For the sake of impartiality, it is appropriate to mention two other agencies of transportation which have performed yeoman service in the war crisis—the trucking companies and the air lines. Vital materials for industry which are too heavy for shipment by express are trucked to factories in a day or two instead of going by freight. The airlines have yielded most of their facilities for military use.

American genius for organization is responsible for getting the output of industry to the points where it is needed in the shortest possible time, and there is no way of knowing how often speedy deliveries have swung the balance in a crisis at the front.

No Emotionalism In Campaign For Dewey

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5.—The move you observe Candidate Dewey the more you are struck by two qualities—his self-discipline and his sensitivity.

Although he tries hard at his press conferences, he does not succeed in seeming at ease. It is a conscious effort, every movement of it, and you can see the strain. Dewey is the type of person who is disturbed by a lack of order. He wants to keep the questions and answers under his control. Questions that seem unfriendly put a chip on his shoulder. He is defensive.

Yet on occasion he achieves the light touch. Something happened just before he left New York for his trip to St. Louis which illustrates his capacity for a comeback.

Because of his determination to get the facts behind the facts, Warren Moscow, the New York Times' Albany correspondent, has been a kind of hair shirt to Dewey. The two engage in frequent verbal sparring matches at press conferences.

Poses With Cake

In a farewell bout with photographers before he left New York, Dewey posed for pictures in his suite at the Roosevelt hotel with a big piece of cake which the manager of the hotel had presented him. As the photographers were doing their best, Moscow said:

"I wonder how that will fit under a Pullman pillow, governor?"

"Well, it depends on how light your head is, Warren," Dewey replied without a moment's hesitation.

How they will react to crowds, and how the crowd will react to him, is a question the police had not answered. The Dewey party paraded through three communities, but since it was carefully announced in advance that there would be no speeches, people had no strong inducement to come out.

At the station in Pittsburgh a small crowd had come out to welcome the governor with placards printed for the occasion. Obviously the Republican organization had been at work.

When he returned to his train that evening the curious stood on the curb in considerable numbers, although never in sufficiently large forces to require the precaution of ropes. The police had put up the stores are open in downtown Pittsburgh on Monday evening until 9 o'clock, and for the most part the throng seemed to be made up of shoppers and clerks. There was some boozing and some cries of Roosevelt mingled with applause.

Show Real Enthusiasm

At Springfield, Ill., a sizeable crowd at the station and a big crowd at the executive mansion showed real enthusiasm in spite of the heat. Springfield is a Republican stronghold, and here was the hero on whom these Republicans were counting to knock out the champ.

Contrast with St. Louis was painful. Our arrival here was, of course, early. But it was obvious the Republican organization had done nothing to prepare a welcome for the candidate. The little group at Union station that confronted Dewey, as he stepped out onto the back platform with Mrs. Dewey and Governor and Mrs. Donald of Missouri, was made up of people who happened to be there. The line of cars moved slowly from the station to the Statler hotel through almost empty streets.

While this is perhaps not a real test, it is nevertheless clear that there is little curiosity about Dewey, the man. He has not begun to capture the public imagination.

No Emotionalism

Perhaps he never will. Conceivably he could be elected without any dramatic projection of a personality, such as characterized Wendell Willkie's crusade. Dewey's campaign managers look at all this pretty objectively. Their kind of campaign doesn't call for emotionism.

How much crowds mean is debatable anyway. Political observers always recall the masses who turned out to see Al Smith in 1928. They received Smith himself. When Willkie came to St. Louis in the course of his campaign four years ago, it looked as though the whole city had turned out.

Sensitive, self-disciplined Candidate Dewey may learn crowd mastery in the coming weeks. But if he has his own way, and he usually does, he will follow the cool, detached pattern of the governors' meeting.

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 8:15. Sun rises tomorrow 5:57.

It would ruin any man's peace of mind to know as much about himself as other people know about him.

A "chip off the old block" sometimes destroys the symmetry of the family tree.

You can find out a lot of things during a long sick spell and often it's a good thing to say nothing about them.

Human nature will never work as hard for money as for more money.

Nowadays our necessities are too luxurious and our necessities too necessary.

So far no one has discovered the father of invention.

A woman is judged by the company she has just left.

Women who used to say that "travel has a broadening effect" now find this is equally true of sitting around the house.

If your wife laughs at your jokes, it is either because she knows some good ones herself or that she is a good wife.

People rich in experience are all too often short in cash.

A neighbor is one who wonders when the d-n party will end.

About the only thing a nickel is good for now is to get the wrong number on the telephone.

People in night clubs don't wear their nightgowns, they drink them.

A clergyman was spending the afternoon at a house in the English village where he had preached. After tea he was sitting in the garden with his hostess. Out rushed her little boy holding a rat above his head.

"Don't be afraid, mother," he cried, "it's dead. We beat him and bashed him and thumped him until..." and then catching sight of the clergyman, he added in a lowered voice—"until God called him home."

Youth can buy nothing half so precious as what it sells.

It requires a weak mind to argue against one's conscience.

Reduced circumstances are the kind that everlastingly attract cases.

Reply to "A Reader": Yes, we were taught in school never to end a sentence with a preposition.

But I once read that Charles Dickens was a good writer too never paid any attention to rules of literature.

Therefore, we try to write understandingly and if we violate the rules, it does not matter. About the only thing we have never done so far is to commence a sentence with a period...and some day, we may do just that!

"Say, father, what is a nobody?"

"A nobody, my son, is a prominent woman's husband."

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD:

For those who contemplate starting in business for themselves, one of the most important lessons to learn is that profit starts only where the cost leaves off.

A little judicious praise will make a husband do better, but what words can you use to praise him for taking a bath?

Perhaps you do not know or even care, but a ton of radium would be worth 56 billion dollars.

"Just for the sake of argument" is a truly democratic expression. It is your right and my right to express a contrary opinion. This is the basis of "freedom of speech"—it is the American right of self-expression.

It is our unremembered acts of kindness that bring the most reward in the future.

It isn't true that any boy may become President. Only the few grow up to know how to handle the job, and they become political columnists.

Truman Buildup Is Proving Strain

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—THE EFFORT to build Senator Truman up to a point where it will not be painful to contemplate the possibility of his becoming President of the United States is imposing a severe strain upon the columnists, commentators and press agents devoted to the noble cause of continuing the Roosevelt regime for at least four more years.

SOME OF the more conscientious among them are beginning to bog down and there are clear indications that before long the whole attempt will be abandoned and the sounder theory adopted that so far as the great mass of voters are concerned it makes no great difference who runs for second place on a Presidential ticket and the further he is pushed into the background the better. Certainly, the journalistic gentlemen who have been trying to make Senator Truman out of a man of real Presidential size have found themselves frustrated, no matter which way they turned. From no source have they gotten any real help—least of all from Senator Truman.

THEIR FIRST handicap is that the candidate, who should know himself better than anyone else, very gravely doubts his own qualifications and is obviously aware that he is being terribly overpraised. Another obstacle is Senator Truman's political background, which, personally honest though he is, is considered a handicap. Another is his record in the Senate, which is utterly devoid of originality or independence. Still another is the failure of the Truman Committee record to measure up to the extravagant eulogies that have been draped around it. Finally, there is the more or less trivial matter of having kept his wife on the Senate payroll at $4,500 a year almost from the start of his service.

FAR from fitting into the picture of a first-grade Senator and an outstanding statesman, the things all attested to the fact that Senator Truman is a rather lightweight politician who has always followed his local party bosses, stuck close by the Administration and never found himself in conflict with the White House wishes. If he had not been that kind of a man in Missouri, Pendergast, Kansas City boss, would never have made him Senator and if he had not been that kind of a Senator he would not have been chairman of the Truman Committee and certainly Mr. Roosevelt would not have made him his running mate.

CONCERNING Mr. Truman personally it can be said that he is a man of impeccable character whose consciousness of his own limitations made him genuinely reluctant to become a candidate for the Vice-Presidential nomination and who did so only when the pressure came to him from the politicians he recognizes as bosses. The news magazine Time described him as almost in a panic when he realized he was going to be named.

With tears in his eyes, it said, he protested his unfitness for the Presidential office to which he cooly may succeed should Mr. Roosevelt be elected.

As to his background, the record shows that after his little haberdashery business went broke, Pendergast gave him his first small political job; that later, Pendergast handpicked him for the Senate; that after Pendergast had been exposed Mr. Truman made an impassioned defense of him in the Senate.

AN ATTEMPT is now being made to wipe all this out by superlative praise of the Truman Committee, which it is claimed, saved vast sums of money and performed great services. No impact, however, is made on this contention though it is the only one which gave the Truman nomination the least degree of reasonableness. The truth is that while the committee made some serviceable criticisms of the war management, offered some sound suggestions and did some good work, the criticism had been made before and the suggestions were of things, such as the single-headed production board, which had become inevitable. The significant thing is that only indirectly did the committee ever attach the slightest blame to the President, who was obviously the man responsible.

It never directly declared that he was never directly erred in any direction on any occasion. On the contrary, Mr. Truman, personally, went so far out of his way to eulogize Roosevelt management as to bring a protest from the minority members. The basic fact is that the Truman Committee from the start always had House support and nothing it ever said or did was really unacceptable to Mr. Roosevelt.

PERHAPS it is not very important that the Senator put—and has kept—Mrs. Truman on the public payroll. Always when such things are disclosed the claim is that the payroll relative is so efficient as to be indispensable. Perhaps that is true of Mrs. Truman. Nevertheless, the fact remains that first-grade Senators do not do that kind of thing. In former times there used to be sure and deep public resentment toward this form of nepotism. But the way in which the Roosevelt family for twelve years past, has capitalized its White House occupancy appears to have blunted popular sensitiveness on this subject. However, to many, it still seems an exhibition of bad taste and a proof of low standards. Adding it to the other Truman impediments makes it easy to understand why the Truman build-up is meeting with so little success—why the effort to picture, as equal to the greatest administrative job in the world, a man whose chief administrative experience was in conducting an unsuccessful haberdashery—is not going well.

Congressional Campaigns Hinge On Germany, Too
Lawmakers Must Remain On Job If War Ends Soon
Jap Dogs Have No Use For Delicacies

(Special to Central Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—A collapse of Germany before the November elections—and many military authorities believe this is likely—will upset plans for a recess of Congress until after the elections.

That would include the campaign plans of a great many senators and representatives, although those facing hard re-election battles are expected to attend to their campaigns regardless of what happens in Europe.

The tentative arrangement worked out by congressional leaders calls for an early recess until after Labor Day. Then when Congress meets, after Labor Day, according to this tentative program, it probably will stay in session a couple of weeks and then quit until after the elections.

This program, however, was worked out on the assumption that no emergency would arise which would keep Congress in session. Defeat of Germany would create an emergency with regard to a great many important legislative matters. For one thing, Congress is far behind in the enactment of major post-war legislation. It has passed only one major post-war bill, the measure providing machinery for settlement of claims arising from canceled war contracts.

Bills providing general demobilization matters, including special employment compensation for discharged war workers, and a program for disposal of surplus war property and plants, still have not yet formulated.

A collapse of Germany will bring the government face to face with the necessity of having such programs immediately at hand.

What may be an even noisier swan song than the "Burning of Rome" is being sung these days by Representative Martin Dies, the colorful Texas Democrat, who so long has kept the Dies committee on un-American activities an organ.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

CHILDREN WHO FRET AT BEDTIME

There are a good many thousand bed time scenes fraught with anger, scolding, fretting, crying, punishment. Many children never go happily to bed over periods of months and years at a stretch. Some first commanded at eight o'clock are still being commanded at eleven o'clock to go to bed.

This matter of getting children, say from seven to twelve, to bed on time proves a serious one in perhaps the majority of homes. On one hand is the conscientious desire of the parents to assure ample sleep for the child, and on the other, the child's wish to stay up longer and not to have his freedom interfered with. He finds all sorts of ways to fulfill his wish. A good many children would go to bed earlier than they do if their parents made no attempt at all to send them.

Set Certain Bedtime
But standards are worthwhile and they can be attained by parents who can together make plans ahead and stick by these plans. Let a bedtime be set in September for the child to observe on his own responsibility throughout the school year. However, this plan might provide a later time for going to bed on Friday nights than on other nights.

Suppose you are the parent of a 10-year-old who every night has bounded to bed nearly every night, and you wish to make him responsible for sending himself to bed regularly. In the first place, you will want to pledge to him that from this time on you will not argue. Having worked out with the child what seems a reasonable hour for going to bed, state exactly what it will cost him if he is not.

WISE AND FOOLISH ANGLERS

He knew too much of how and when

And all that lies 'twixt wrong and right.

Of wind and tide, and where they hide.

To fish when bass aren't apt to bite.

He'd read the books wise men have penned;

Was versed in piscatorial lore.

When not to go, he claimed to know.

And so he seldom left the shore.

"You'll have no luck," he'd often say.

"The water's much too high or low.

The wind's not right; they'll never bite.

If I were you I wouldn't go."

Yet many a time some fishing fool.

Whose knowledge of the signs was small.

At night would pass him by with bass.

He never should have caught at all.

LOOKING AT LIFE

By ERICH BRANDEIS

Sometimes I wonder where children get those ideas that make them speak in what is almost epigrams.

For instance, Margaret Carson, the well-known public relations woman, told me about her five-year-old boy who very seriously remarked:

"I like the mornings, Mummy."

"And why do you like the mornings, dear?"

"Because they make the evenings come so much faster."

Margaret tried to figure out what the boy had meant, but she couldn't. So she asked him to explain.

"Well, it's because you come home in the evenings, Mummy," he said. Child's talk, but a philosopher could have written a whole essay about it.

Don't we all rush through our days because there is something to look forward to in the evening? Yes, isn't every period of life everything we do, just a stepping stone to something for which we hope and to which we strive—the Mummy comes home, or when we get married, or buy our home or achieve our success—or just have that peace and contentment and happiness which evening brings?

Don't you too, like the morning and the afternoon, because when evening comes you'll get your heart's desire?

And Vera, my secretary, whom you ought to know by now, told me about her seven-year-old cousin in Milwaukee.

His mother was going to take him East to visit his grandfather. But mother sprained her back and was afraid the trip would have to be called off.

Jimmy looked up to her and said in his little voice:

More Than 300 Young Australian Brides, Some With Babies Coming To America

By JACK MAHON

AN AUSTRALIAN PORT, Aug. 2.—(Delayed)—Confident they will learn to love the United States, more than 300 Australian brides of American servicemen anxiously awaited transportation today to their new homeland.

Many of them held babies in their arms—babies their husbands had not yet seen.

"You see," said one, "our husbands were transferred to America before our babies were born."

Some Unmarried
This is the largest contingent of war brides yet assembled. Some of them have been waiting for transportation to the United States since last May.

And when this contingent reaches the United States it will increase the total of Australian girls going over the Pacific to 900.

Ten per cent of the girls will be married when they reach America. The list of husbands whose wives are still abroad includes: Pfc. Ralph E. Koenig, Philadelphia; S-Sgt. E. A. Cousins, Sharon, Pa.; Lt. William L. Graham, Charlestown, W. Va.; S-Sgt. Edgar Cousins, 145 Sergeant St. Sharon, Pa. and S-Sgt. Tony Barbone, Bridgeport, Pa.

ABOARD ADMIRAL CONOLLY'S FLAGSHIP, GUAM, Aug. 5.—(Via Navy Radio)—While Marines and Army troops closed in upon the beleaguered Japanese on Guam, American artillery tonight sounded the ominous thunder before the great final storm that is gathering to blow the enemy off the island.

Foot soldiers pressing northward in a line extending across the island gratefully credited the big field guns with killing hundreds of Japanese troops.

Facilitating the drive to break Nippon's withering clutch on this American territory, the batteries of Brig. Gen. Pedro Augusto del Valle belch and rumble through the day and night.

Hickey said the young man had confessed attacking and then strangling the striking young brunette.

Higgins was held on a coroner's warrant charging him with murder in connection with Miss Sienna's slaying.

Woman Is Killed, Another Injured In Freak Accident

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 5.—(INS)—One woman was killed and her companion was seriously injured today when they were struck by an automobile on a highway 15 miles east of Connellsville near Mill Run.

Mrs. Dorothy Hiles, Uniontown, died on the way to Connellsville hospital, and Mrs. Hanna Turner, 20, of Dunbar township, was reported in serious condition from head injuries.

State police said the driver of the car, George E. Kintigh, 18, of Albion, told them the women were lying in the middle of the road and that he could not stop his car in time to avoid the accident.

Mrs. Turner, however, reported that she and her companion were sitting on the road to rest. She said they were walking to Ohioville, where they were visiting friends, and had become tired.

Tommy Dorsey And Jon Hall Battle

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.—(INS)—Film Star Jon Hall and Tommy Dorsey, noted bandleader, squared off in a pre-dawn fistie encounter today on a balcony at Dorsey's Hollywood apartment, the Los Angeles Herald-Express reported today.

Hall, the hero of many romantic screen stories, reportedly suffered a head cut when he was knocked against a flower pot in the affair, the story said.

Dorsey's actress-wife, Pat Dane, was among those present for the latest film colony fracas, in which the bespectacled bandleader assertedly came off with the decision and some skinned knuckles.

The Herald-Express said police were informed the episode followed "Remarks made to Mrs. Dorsey" and that the band leader stripped off his coat and shirt and invited Hall to "step outside on the balcony" at 4:30 a.m.

Neither Dorsey nor Hall could be reached immediately for comment as to the cause of the reputed fistfight.

Finance Officer Is Most Welcome

Even Pin-Up Girls Cannot Compare With Popularity Of Paymaster

FORT MONMOUTH, N. J., Aug. 5.—(INS)—It's not the pin-up girls those boys on the South Pacific Islands hang out their best welcome sign for, but a man—believe it or not.

The man is Capt. Harold Eichen, 28, of Rochester, N. Y., newly arrived Fort Monmouth finance officer, who beat his way round 50,000 miles from island to island toting over a million dollars in one hand and a revolver in the other.

Starts In Hawaii
His trip began from Hawaii in February 1943 when he started on the 13-month trek to pay the men in the Pacific. His travelogue includes a trip to Tarawa a few hours after the invasion when continued fire held up the payroll for a short time.

On another South Pacific island he landed 90 minutes after the first invasion wave and set up a stand paying out more than $1,200,000 in cash.

The captain's payroll also includes men of all services on Kwajalein, Tarawa, Canton, Christmas, Helen, Baker, and Funi Funi Islands.

Every time he ran short of cash he sent back to Hawaii for more and it came on the first bomber.

"It was just like a college boy writing home for money," he said. Only the army never protests and never missed sending it.

Balkan Air Force Created By Allies

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(INS)—The British air ministry today announced the creation of a new flying arm, the Balkan air force, less than 72 hours after Turkey severed relations with the Reich.

The planes, a composite group from the Mediterranean command, were set aside for the centralization of the conduct of air operations in the Balkans, except strategic bombers, and for the intensification of air operations in the Adriatic, the official announcement said.

Saipan Wounded Sees War Lasting Two More Years

Six American Soldiers Back From Saipan Invasion Say Japs Far From Licked

By LORETTA McCLATCHY
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

HAMILTON FIELD, Calif., Aug. 5.—Six American soldiers, among the first wounded to be evacuated from Saipan, had high praise today for the Army wings of mercy which flew them first to base hospitals and then to the United States for further medical treatment.

From their hospital beds at the Army air base at Hamilton Field, Calif., these members of the 27th Infantry Division want "everyone to know the air evacuation of wounded is saving lives by giving us the quickest and best medical care." They will be flown shortly to hospitals near their homes.

Plenty Tough Yet
"What I and the other boys went through is just a little sample of what is to come," First Lieut. Robert Smith, 27, of (R. D. 4) Binghamton, N. Y., said.

Lieutenant Smith, previously wounded in battle, was wounded in the chest and arms by enemy mortar fire on Saipan.

"Our battlefield discipline was excellent," he said. "The Japs outnumbered us about two to one but they didn't know how to mass their artillery. If they did, our initial landings wouldn't have been so successful."

Lieutenant Smith was the only evacuee who would estimate how long the war with Japan would last. "It won't be over for at least another two years," he said. "People just don't realize how large New Guinea is, what is on New Britain or Bougainville, and how many islands there are in the Philippines, and that is but a start."

Reconversion

Speaking of Reconversion and most of us immediately visualize new cars, vacuum cleaners, refrigerators and the thousand and one things that have disappeared due to the war. It is true that Victory will bring these luxuries back to the American home. Not the starchy-eyed dreams that we see pictured but the same 1941 models that vanished in total war. The change from production of armament to peace time products is but one phase of the problem of reconversion. The other . . . and the more important . . . is the reconversion of the men and women now in uniform.

As a matter of fact, this latter reconversion problem is with us now. To date more than 1,300,000 have been discharged from the various services. This is but a small trickle compared to the flood that will come with the war's end.

How are these men going to take it? How are we, in civilian life, going to accept them? The success or failure of this reconversion problem depends to a very great extent on how we remained at home assist the men who did the fighting readjust themselves to their normal way of life.

The first requirement will undoubtedly be a job. Many of the men now in uniform will make their own readjustments without any trouble. They will fit right into their former work . . . or perhaps qualify for a higher position due to army training . . . without fuss or bother. Their world-wide travels will have left them with the knowledge that there is really no place like home. They will accept the changes made in industry because of the war. They will realize that the rapid advancements in methods is really progress toward more efficient manufacturing. All in all, they will be better employees and citizens because of their war experience.

There will be thousands, however, that will pose many questions for us civilians. After all, a job is not a man's whole life. Some will find the tense, exciting hours spent behind a machine gun . . . or on a ship have made his former job too dull and monotonous. A few will find that being an officer and giving orders is quite different from taking orders. These and many other factors . . . some serious . . . some minor will make human reconversion a bit difficult.

We at Johnson Bronze are well aware of this problem. At the present time over one-third of our normal employment is in uniform. Many of these men were highly skilled and of great value to us. Quite a few have developed new skills or trades in the service. We expect practically all of them to return to us when the shooting stops. And we expect to provide good steady employment for every one.

Practically all of our employees that have received discharge papers are back at work now. Thus as an industry we hope to be able to solve the job side of the reconversion. The human side will have to be handled by the returning soldier's family . . . his friends . . . his sweetheart.

The treasurer, Edwin Gardner, reported much progress already made on the pledge of Lawrence county to the state union in the drive to raise $10,000 before Sept. 15. It was decided to double the original pledge as the original goal has been exceeded.

It was decided to invite former members of C. E., and friends, who are interested in the work to have a part in this also. The state has an offer by which all money paid will be doubled. James Shaw presided. Devotions were led by Mary Elizabeth Morris, prayer by Rev. J. N. Rainey.

The committee on Sunday evening meetings which are under the sponsorship of the C. E. Union and the Ministerial Association, reported very favorably on the meetings. Good attendance has prevailed at every meeting, and the speakers, song leaders and special numbers have all been excellent. The meeting will continue through the first Sunday evening in September, with an attractive schedule set up for the remaining services.

Remainder of the evening was spent with a wiener roast under the direction of Thelma Thompson and Madge Neely.

Next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Shaw, Plainville, on September 7.

WASHINGTON REPORT

ization to be reckoned with, as far as subversive fellows are concerned. Dies, who has announced plans to resign from Congress and yield the helm of the Dies committee to another because of a troublesome throat affliction, is going to give the boys something to remember him by.

Almost on the eve of his final departure from Washington, Dies is endeavoring to get the hottest issue of the day before Attorney General Francis Biddle again—the matter of the C. I. O. political action committee.

If the Dies committee doesn't agree to make a report as a committee on alleged P. A. C. law violations in relation to the political campaign expenditures reportedly uncovered by the Dies group, Chairman Dies himself is expected to file his own report with the attorney general in relation to the P. A. C.

That's what Washington observers are calling Martin Dies' swan song.

In these days of meat scarcity, dog lovers will be pleased to hear about pets that spurn such delicacies. According to Marines who returned recently from the Marshall Islands, the American fighting men took possession of a number of dogs that belonged to the Japanese.

The Marines attempted to feed the dogs scraps of meat from the kitchen, but the dogs refused to touch them, gobbling up dishes of rice and dried fish put before them instead.

On another island in the Marshalls, the Marines found a chicken that was shell-shocked and would not lay eggs. A medical officer took charge of the hen, treated her and she rewarded him by providing fresh eggs, a real delicacy in the battle zone.

Fighting men make the most of such pets on lonely atolls, where boredom is their worst enemy once the Japanese are cleaned out and the shooting war moves westward. Many soldiers, sailors and marines never again want to visit the "glamorous" south seas.

Cooper And Bender Are Facing Charges

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 5.—(INS)—St. Joseph county authorities today were to ask naval officials at the University of Notre Dame to turn over Jackie Cooper, movie star, and a fellow trainee, George Bender, to them for prosecution on charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Deputy Prosecutors John W. Montgomery and Leo S. Cook said they would make the demand to Commander Walter S. Gabel, executive officer of the navy V-12 unit at Notre Dame.

Comdr. Gabel, it was understood, would refer the demand to Secretary of the Navy Forrestal for action.

Cooper, 22, of Hollywood, and Bender, 24, of Sheffield, Ill., were accused, along with two others of charges involving a 16 and a 15-year-old girl.

Report 33 Killed In Georgia Wreck

All Of Dead Believed To Be Negroes En Route Home Over Week-End

STOCKTON, Ga., Aug. 5.—(INS)—Thirty-three persons were killed and more than 30 were injured today when two cars of an Atlantic Coast Line passenger train crashed into a freight train standing on a siding one mile east of Stockton.

Swing Lobby In Full Swing Friday Night

The heat did not damp nor the humidity wilt the enthusiasm of the Swing Lobby kids on Friday evening when they gathered at the Y. W. C. A. for their weekly jam-boree. Although attendance was slightly lighter than usual still about 200 high school students from Ne-Ca-Hi, Union and Shenango townships, and other sections of the county 'cut the rug' between the hours of 8 and 11:30.

There was no floor show during dance intermission as there has been for the past two weeks. It is put on by volunteers from among the Swing Lobbyists and as there were no names on the entertainment list, there was no show.

Chairman Aline Turner and co-chairman Phyllis Burdette are open for performers.

In addition to dancing, there was the cabaret, the snack bar, while pingpong enthusiasts battled it out on the balcony over the auditorium. Recordings furnished music and announcement was made that request numbers will be played, on future nights.

Swing Lobby will be in session again next Friday at the same place. The Lions club sponsors the summer sessions in cooperation with the Business Girls department of the Y. W. C. A.

Attacker Kills Mother Of Three

Niagara Falls Police Hunt Man Who Strangled Woman, In Night Of Terror

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(INS)—Police scoured this famed honeymooners town today for the nude rapist who attacked and strangled to death pretty Mrs. Irma Kennedy, mother of three, choked one of her sons, and then ran naked two blocks away where he assaulted another woman.

The mysterious killer ripped off a screen leading to the bedroom of eight-year-old James Kennedy and then crept into the mother's room. The young mother was found choked to death with a flimsy nightgown.

Shortly after this a man, said by police to be the same, ripped the screen off the bedroom window of Mrs. Clara Rayburn, but fled when her husband entered the room.

A Mother's Experience

A mother writes: "Dear Mr. Myers: I had written you for advice as to how I should manage to get my nine-year-old girl to go to bed on time. I followed your advice to the letter. The first night she failed to go after being reminded ahead of time and after being told what the consequences would be. She sat one hour doing nothing, unless you consider a very noisy tantrum something. All this I completely ignored. The second night she failed again to go to bed and sat in the chair one hour, but without the tantrum. The third night she went promptly to bed. The fourth night adult friends came to spend the evening. She again failed to go to bed, after being allowed to visit with them for 30 minutes. She had to sit in the chair in her own room for one hour. Since then she has sent herself to bed promptly every evening."

Milkweed Pods To Be Collected

Milkweed To Serve Useful Purpose In War Effort—Plan Collection Here

At long last the lowly milkweed comes into its own. Cursed by the farmer and despised by the gardener, the milkweed has gone to war, and whatever you do, don't cut it out. Wait until the pod is ready to burst, and pick it.

Doris Fulkman, chairman of the Agricultural Adjustment Agency for Lawrence county, stated today that the United States Department of Agriculture, through its War Food Administration, will put on a drive throughout the country to collect milkweed pods. The silk floss inside the pod will be used as a substitute for kapok, the down material used in life belts and rafts. The milkweed floss has been found an acceptable substitute and the week that once was a nuisance in the garden now becomes a life-saver for service men and women.

Twenty Cents a Bag

County Superintendent John C. Ewing has been named chairman of the committee in this county and is now contacting such organizations as the Pomona Grange, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Farm Agents and the like.

The pods are to be picked just when they are ready to burst, and then dried. Drying takes several weeks, after which they will be put into mesh bags, which will be furnished by Ewing's committee, and the youngsters will be paid 20 cents per bag for the pods.

Milkweed nearly made the grade of war material when it was first thought the milk from it could be made into rubber. That idea blew a fuse, but the latest idea seems to be o. k. Twenty cents a bag for milkweed pods is a nice piece of change for the youngsters, and the floss collected will be used in a vital industry. In short, everybody can be a milkmaid to a milkweed this year.

Plane Landed On Orange Juice And Coffee For Fuel

Hydraulic System Out Of Commission After Jap Island Attack, Pour In Coffee, Juice

By GEORGE McWILLIAMS (U.S. Staff Correspondent)

AN ADVANCED ALEUTIAN BASE, Aug. 5.—Lieutenant John W. Pool of Selman City, Tex., wrote a new version of coming in on a wing and a prayer when he landed his battle-damaged navy bomber on coffee and orange juice.

With other Venturas of fleet air-wing four, Pool and his crew made a daylight attack on Jap airdromes and offshore shipping in the Kuriles—a raid that cost the enemy a patrol vessel sunk and a fighter probably destroyed.

Tail Shot Up

Over Paramushiro he was jumped by seven Jap fighters with others parked upstairs ready to join the swirling skirmish. Three of his crew were wounded and the bomber's tail shot up before Pool decided to go home.

While Ensign Bernard Reiley of Pottsville, Pa., co-pilot, gave first aid to the wounded men, Ensign Fay Warner of Edinboro, Pa., navigator, took stock of damage. The hydraulic system controlling landing gear, wing flaps and brakes was punctured and most of the fluid had leaked out.

A crewman pinched off the broken line with pliers, but hydraulic pressure was almost zero by the time the bomber approached base for a landing.

Feather-Touch Landing

Pool circled offshore while Reiley and Warner poured three cans of orange juice and a thermos jug of coffee into the hydraulic tank. With pressure up again, the crew got the wheels and flaps down and the pilot made a feather-touch landing.

There still was not enough pressure to bring the tail wheel down or work the brakes. Pool solved that by dropping the tail to act as a drag and skidded the bomber to a stop on the undersurface.

"And to think," Pool said, "that we came very near drinking the coffee and orange juice on the way over."

ERIE WEATHERMAN ROMANTIC FELLOW

ERIE, Pa.—(INS)—The weatherman has always been pictured as a dour sort of fellow, concerned only with his charts and instruments, but there's a bit of the romantic in Erie's new United States Weather Observer, G. Dorance Wickham.

Whenever possible, he forecasts the probable amount of moonlight to be expected. It's a very popular service with Erie's younger generation.

Wickham first made a hit with Erie when he ignored the customary scientific and precise terminology of weather forecasting, which the average person often finds misleading, in favor of such predictions as:

"Hot and sticky."

Pennsylvania Grand Assembly, Order of the Rainbow for Girls, which has been in session here since Thursday afternoon, was officially brought to a close this morning, with the reports of committees. This was followed by installation of officers, which was open to the public.

Miss Marjorie W. Allen, past worthy advisor of New Castle Assembly, who has served the Grand Assembly as grand faith during the past year, together with her corps of elective and appointive officers were officially inducted into office with the Retiring Grand Worthy Advisor Sarah C. Wilson of Altoona presiding.

This evening there will be the grand banquet at 5:30 p. m., followed by the exemplification of the grand cross of color degree, which honors those who have earned the degree through service to the order.

Afterwards the activities in connection with the convention will be brought to a close with the grand ball.

The convention has been attended by over 350 delegates from the various assemblies throughout the state. Friday afternoon the girls enjoyed a splash party at Cascade Park, followed by a box lunch in the grove.

In the evening the beautiful initiatory work of the order was exemplified, when a class of 20 young girls were initiated, with members of the Masonic fraternity and Eastern Stars as guests.

The convention, which has been a most colorful event, has brought joy and happiness to the large group of girls who have been the guests of the New Castle Assembly, and tonight they will start wending their way homeward after a pleasant convention.

Nuremburg Once Nazi Toy Town; Now War Center

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(INS)—The resolute defense of Nuremburg that brought a record single-mission loss to the RAF demonstrates the Bavarian city's industrial and political importance in the Nazi scheme, says a National Geographic Society bulletin.

Modern Nuremburg and its industrial satellite, Furth, number half a million people. Spreading for miles along the Pegnitz river, their factories compose the largest commercial center in southern Germany. They make Diesel engines, locomotives, motor trucks, radio sets, transformers, a variety of delicate mechanisms, steel and tin ware, typewriters, chemicals and pharmaceuticals and many other war-useful things.

Prewar accounts of Nuremburg, written by the tourist in mind, gave a Disney-style glamor to the city's industrial output by making it a center of all sorts of toys, a land of Christmas tree balls, pencils, paints, brushes and gadgets for entertainment. These were indeed the industries of the picturesque, medieval Old Town with its churches, museums and great enclosing wall with a tower for each day of the year.

Visitors, overlooking the sombre and sprawling modern industrial city, described the Old Town community atmosphere that produced the paintings of Albrecht Durer, the metal casting of Peter Vischer, the wood carving of Veit Stoss. Old Nuremburg gave the world its first pocket watch, known far and wide as the "Nuremburg egg". The city gave Germany statesmen, sculptors, singers and poets. It was long known as the "Jewel Case of the Reich".

Seeing Nuremburg as the embodiment of the fame of the First Reich, present Nazi leaders chose it as a heart of the strength of the Third Reich. They made it the seat of the great party congresses from which the new Nationalist spirit and hopes flowed to every corner of the country. A Reich Party Rally Area was laid out. On it was built the enormous Luftwaffe arena, the Zeppelinfeld, and Marzfeld parade grounds. In course of construction were the Congress building to seat 40,000 people indoors, and the German stadium to seat ten times that number.

SHIP SINKS WAKES UP ON TRANSPORT

PITTSBURGH—(INS)—It isn't because the Navy warned him about divulging any military secrets that Petty Officer Albert Adam doesn't talk about the sinking of his ship off the Gilbert Islands, it's merely because he can't remember a thing about it.

Adam was knocked unconscious when the first torpedo struck the escort aircraft carrier. He came to eight days later aboard a transport bound for Hawaii and the young Kennecott sailor knows only what his friends and officers have told him about the battle.

CAN YOU IMAGINE POPEYE'S REACTION

NEW YORK.—(INS)—Housewives who wanted to buy a pound of spinach or a head of lettuce from a New York market were annoyed recently when compelled to buy extra ingredients for a complete salad, including celery, peppers, beans and cauliflower.

Judge Francis G. Caffery levied a $350 fine on the market owners when they pleaded guilty to the charge of evading price ceilings.

SURE, YOU'RE IN A HURRY-- SO IS THAT LAD OVERSEAS

These are days of hurry, hurry to get through one job in order to start another, hurry to make a train and then find it crowded to the doors, hurry to place an order for goods and find the manufacturer is out. Everybody is in a hurry these days, but all of us have to wait now and then.

Motor trucks are hurrying these days, hurrying like they never did before, hurrying to get your merchandise delivered, but they are also hurrying to get war materials to the docks for that lad overseas is in a hurry too, in a hurry to get the job done and get home—and he needs the war materials far worse than we need civilian goods.

Delays now and then are unavoidable these days—even in motor trucking. But like good Americans, all of us are accepting the delays, knowing that the lad overseas comes first. After all the biggest hurry is to hurry the victory which is on the way.

STOCK MARKET IS UNSETTLED

Market Is Lower Today Although Heavy Turnover Of Friday Is Curtailed

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(INS)—Stocks were lower again today although the heavy turnover of yesterday was curtailed.

The downturn, which cut a Dow Jones market average nearly a dollar yesterday, set in at the very start with many important issues off as much as a half point.

Later some semblance of support appeared although it never reached proportions sufficient to put the list on the plus side.

By the close such pivotal shares as Bethlehem was off 1-4 point at 31 and General Electric as much as 37-8. Chrysler lost 1-2 point at 31-1-8 but General Motors was up 3-8 at 60-5-8. Others to show light gains included Socony-Vacuum, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and U. S. Steel. Curb prices were mixed. Bonds were unchanged.

GEORGIA SOLDIER OVERCOMES SHYNESS

NEW YORK.—(INS)—An eloquent sales talk on the beauty of New York's Fifth Avenue, delivered at the United Nations recreation club, left the recipient singularly unimpressed. A shy young officer from Georgia, he couldn't be sold on the idea of a sightseeing tour—until he was told, "Why, Fifth Avenue is our Main Street." Then his face lit up. He accepted a map of the city and a theater ticket and sallied forth.

In normal times the per capita consumption of meat in the United States averaged slightly more than one-third pound a day, pork being the leading meat.

Use Meteorology To Direct Fire Of Allied Artillery

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY, Italy.—(INS)—A little known branch of the artillery in warfare, and one that played an important part in the Fifth Army's breaching of the Gustav Line and the occupation of Rome, is the meteorological section that literally "directs" the artillery.

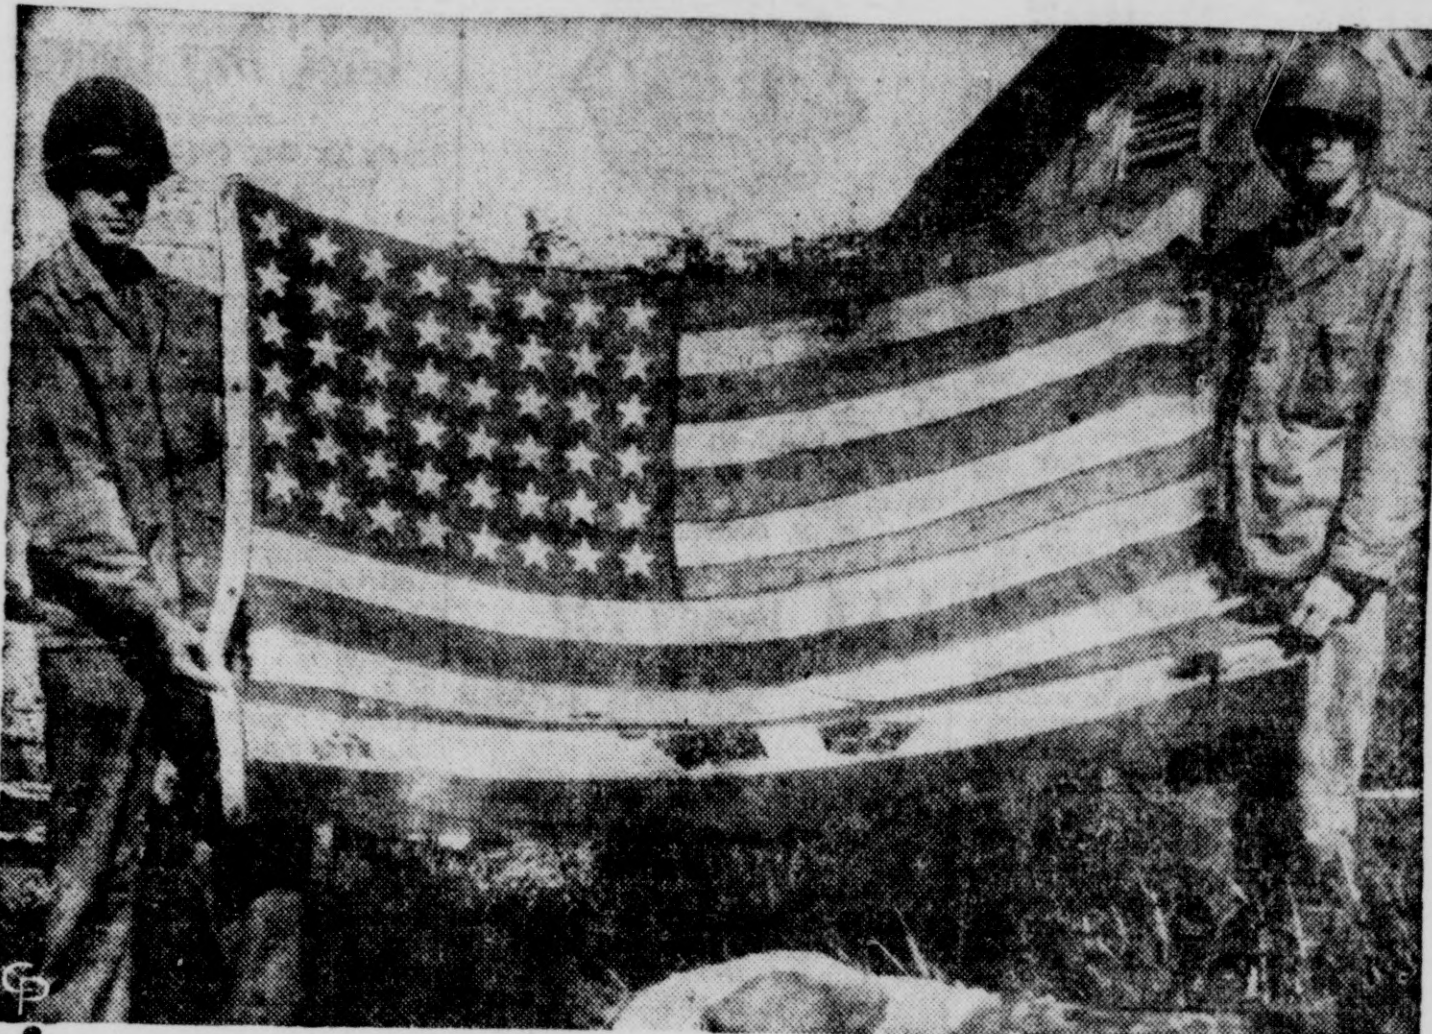

Corporal Anthony J. Malinowski of Brooklyn, is in charge. To make sure the high-explosive shells land exactly where they are aimed, Corporal Malinowski must first make calculations for wind speed and direction, air density and pressure as well as temperature. In field artillery language the information Malinowski and his four-man crew sends to the fire direction centers are known as "metro messages." On rainy or windy days, metro messages are of first importance with the artillery.

"The findings we report to the gunners help make our artillery the accurate weapons Jerry fears so much," modestly added the corporal.

Governor Dewey Ends Conferences

Does Not Look Upon Early Collapse of Germany As Essential To Changes

SECURES VIEWS OF HOST OF LEADERS

By LEO W. ORRIN
(U.S. Staff Correspondent)

EN ROUTE TO PAWLING, N. Y., WITH GOV. DEWEY, Aug. 5.—Governor Thomas E. Dewey returned to his home state of New York today, carrying with him detailed party declarations of principles on domestic issues and a conviction that the war will not be a barrier on his road to the White House.

The Republican presidential nominee, whose 2,350-mile trip to Pennsylvania, Illinois and Missouri ends today at his Pawling, N. Y., farm believes his two-day St. Louis conference on federal-state relations has advanced the Dewey-Bricker ticket toward victory in November.

German Collapse No Factor
He served notice that he does not look upon an early collapse of Germany as essential to Republican chances.

"I am exceedingly happy over the reports of our great military successes," he said, "and I am convinced that the Republican party will win in November, regardless of the war news."

During his tri-state tour, which began at New York City last Sunday night, Governor Dewey has gone through a breath-taking schedule without any apparent dampening of his vigor. In a period of five days the Republican nominee accomplished the following:

Talked with more than 500 leaders of labor and industry at Pittsburgh, Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis on reconstruction and postwar employment, those discussions being preliminary to the writing of a detailed party program on those subjects.

Meets Leaders
Met with hundreds of Republican officials and candidates, including the G.O.R. congressional delegates from Pennsylvania, Illinois and Missouri, on campaign plans and the correlation of the national campaign with vote drives for state and local candidates.

3. Drafted with 25 other Republican governors a G.O.P. "Magna Charta" on federal-state responsibilities and obligations, and received assurance from the Republican governors, whose states contain 75 per cent of the nation's population, that they will work as a "crusading team" for the Dewey-Bricker ticket.

The tour revealed that Governor Dewey, whose success as a "racket-busting" prosecutor was due largely to painstaking attention to detail in every case, is applying the same technique to his campaign for the presidency.

Only One Speech
Despite the possible temptation to launch his campaign while on this tour, the governor delivered only one speech, an extemporaneous talk to a huge railroad station crowd at Springfield.

He did, however, lay the ground work for many future speeches, the delivery of which is expected to be completed soon after Labor Day.

It was obvious through three great states, that he was avoiding the mistakes of some previous G.O.P. candidates who have crossed swords with President Roosevelt.

He conferred with regular party leaders, some of whom felt they were ignored by Wilkie in 1940; he talked with many labor groups, refusing to recognize labor support as a Roosevelt monopoly, and he made his program on domestic issues the program also of his fellow-Republican governors.

G.O.P. Harmony Seems Best Ever

National Chairman Brownell Is Enthusiastic Over Harmony Being Displayed

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(INS)—The Republican party in 1944 has achieved a spirit of harmony greater than any that has existed in the G.O.P. in more than a generation, national chairman Herbert Brownell declared Friday.

This spirit was wholly evident at the St. Louis conference of 26 Republican governors, who, Brownell said, demonstrated "conclusively" that the Republican party is ready to take over the affairs of a peace-time government next January.

New Deal Confusion
"This is contracted by the new deal's confusion, back-biting, cynicism and quarreling," the chairman declared.

At the same time, during a new conference in Chicago, where he met with Illinois party leaders, Brownell announced the appointment of Sam R. McKelvie, former governor of Nebraska, as director of the western office of the GOP national committee.

No Relaxing Of Shoe Rationing

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 5.—(INS)—A J. Williams, head of the Pittsburgh district OPA, today dispelled any hopes that the rigid rationing of shoes would be relaxed this year.

Williams pointed out that shoe inventories in the country declined 53 million pairs in 1943 and that an even greater decline was anticipated for 1944.

If there is any easing at all, he said, it would be in children's and infants' shoes only.

FOOT CUT
Eris Hill, 26 1/2 East street, received treatment for a laceration of the foot this morning at Jameson Memorial hospital.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

CAMPERS BEAT HEAT

With the heat wave continuing Thursday, the "Y" campers had an enjoyable day with their program. Following the morning chapel services the campers swung into their morning games full of pep, the "termites" tipped the "wild-cats" in a seasonal volley-ball contest packed with good playing and plenty of thrills. While this contest was being staged the "shrimps" were busy handling the "crazycats" a set-back in a well staged baseball game, which went into extra innings. Following the games the campers made a dash for the "ol swimming hole" and soon were cooled off.

In the afternoon, boating was in order before the camp time, and soon it was time for the afternoon games which was what the teams had been waiting for, as the morning losers wanted to even up the series.

The crazycats redeemed themselves by battering the shrimps in the volley-ball series. The termines in two extra innings gnawed off a slim one run margin to beat the wildcats in baseball. Back up to the swimming hole for another well-earned swim.

In the evening the campers decided to witness the clash between their picked all-stars and the counselors. With the series evened up it promised to be a thriller. It sure was, with the counselors the victors, thanks to a timely triple with two men on base. Besides this hit, Stokes pitched a superb game, with Arnold Lewis on the mound, and Ashton behind the plate, the counselors had to make clean hits in order to get on base. Walet on first, and Don Black on short, was a real tough combination to overcome. Cliff Rowland and Carmen Lombard also kept the counselors down with wonderful running catches. The final score of the three to one in favor of the counselors does not tell of the real contest the game was.

The bases were loaded at the final out by the all-stars.

A short refreshing swim followed the game. The campers then were treated to films shown by Jack Boyles.

All quiet and taps by Jim Cox ended another swell day at Camp Rents.

Festival Finishes Girls' Day Camping

Scouts In Gay Costumes End Four Weeks Of Camp At Cascade Park

With grass skirts swinging to the rhythm of a tom-tom, the Brownies, youngest unit at the Girl Scout Day camp, opened the last program of this year's camping season in Cascade park Friday afternoon.

Internationalism was the keynote of the day, with winged-caps on the Dutch girls, and mothers lace curtains on many of the young Carmen Mirandas from down South America way.

Hula Dance
Following the Brownies' hula dances, the younger intermediates took over, with a Dutch dance, a reading about a Dutchman in a barrel, and an acted-out version of "Billy Boy."

Older intermediates, who came next, sang songs from the old plantations while four girls under blankets transformed themselves into tiki—a real trick if you can do it—and a fifth girl under a blanket became the engine of an old Ford.

When the ardent young suitor said his "Oh, Susanna" tried to elope, all of the tiki blew out however. "Sho'tnin' Bread", completely dramatized, was also part of this number.

Conga Line
Older girls went Latin, having a Spanish singer, a South American dancer, a rumba number, and finally forming a conga line which every one else joined, but which turned out to be a little bit more like an elephant walk.

Climaxing the program, the girls presented two crystal composites to Camp Director Mrs. Marjorie Miller, who is "Holly" to the campers. Pop and cookies finished off the afternoon to the complete satisfaction of everyone, even the guests who got their share of the refreshments, too.

News Is Cited For Salvage Efforts

State Salvage Organization Awards Citation To Manager Of The News

For "meritorious services rendered in behalf of the Pennsylvania salvage program" the New Castle News has been cited by the Advisory Committee on Salvage for Pennsylvania.

The citation was received Friday by Salvage Chairman Ross D. Rosenberg and presented by him to J. F. Rentz, general manager of The News.

Recently the Advisory Committee of Salvage named a list of newspapers, some 16 in the state, for outstanding service in the various salvage campaigns. The News is one of this 16.

The New Castle News has backed the various salvage campaigns because of the dire need of salvage. The first campaign held in this county was the aluminum scrap drive. This was followed by several scrap metal drives, tin can drives, paper and waste fats.

Every one of the salvage materials named have been needed in the war effort and still are. As long as the need exists for salvage, The News will continue to lend every effort to the campaigns in this county.

EXAMINED AFTER FALL
Rose Ivory, 13, of 1008 rear South Jefferson street, who fell from a playground swing, received examination for injury at Jameson Memorial hospital Friday afternoon.

Lawrence Declares Harmony Prevails

HARRISBURG, Aug. 5.—(INS)—A thin veil of "harmony" covered the leadership of the Democratic state committee again today as party solons went to work on President Roosevelt's fourth term campaign in Pennsylvania.

Any reports of friction can be dispelled 100 per cent, said State Chairman David L. Lawrence who supported the vice presidential candidacy of Sen. Harry S. Truman, Missouri.

U.S. Sen. Joseph P. Guffey, who failed in his attempt to put over the renomination of Vice-president Henry A. Wallace, left the meeting of the executive committee last night and declined to comment.

"Everybody is enthusiastic about the campaign," said Lawrence after being closed with the committee for three hours. "Every element in the party was represented here today and we are all behind President Roosevelt and Senator Truman."
